UNIQUE COAL WASHERY.

Separates the Cont and Also Fills the Abandoned Workings.

Wilkes-Barre, Aug. 16.—The new washery erected at the East Boston mine of W. G. Payne & Co., in Kingston township, near Luzerne borough, is now in operation.

The method by which the culm is washed is thus described by the Times: It is first crushed into a line of elevators by a stream of water and is conveyed to the head of the washery, where it is dumped on a large plate, which is perforated by holes one inch by three-quarters of an inch.

The culm that is being washed is conveniently located, so that but little work is necessary to get it into the elevators. When needed a line of conveyors will be placed. The machinery for the washery was made at the Vulcan Iron Works and the washery is in charge of William Gaines, of Wilkes-Barre.

ANTHRACITE PROSPECT.

The Philadelphia Ledger continues to note steady improvement.

Philadelphia, Aug. 16.—The Ledger says: The anthracite colliers continue working five days per week on three-quarters time and all of the newly mined coal is being moved to market. The recent scarcity of vessels has somewhat retarded the eastern shipments of coal, and the storage pockets at the New England distributing points have been pretty well depleted of stock.

It is not improbable that there will be made an advance of 15 or 25 cents per ton in the prices for the prepared sizes of anthracite about Sept. 1. The local line and city trade continues quiet, but it is expected that the proposed advance in the prices for coal will stimulate renewed buying before the end of the month. The anthracite trade generally is reported to be in quite a healthy condition, and the outlook for increased business and higher prices for coal at an early date is said by the well informed to be excellent.

WAS SHE BETRAYED?

Sad Circumstances of the Death of Miss Jennie Jenkins.

Wilkes-Barre, Aug. 16.—Says the Record: The sudden death of Miss Jennie Jenkins, a well known young woman of Plymouth, at the home of Mrs. John O'Connell in Edwarsville on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, under peculiar circumstances, has caused a big sensation on the West Side and some startling developments are looked for when the inquest is held.

A FEW THINGS WE SELDOM SEE. Our piscatorial artists coming in with a decent catch and without a fish story. The street commissioner repairing the "old depot hill."—Our burgess fining a "Zita's" horse trot a mile in four minutes.—A claim bake on Saturday night.—Read, Watkins and Walters eating plums out of the postoffice pudding, together.—Our street lamps lighted.—A dog on our streets with a muzzle on.—Lithia Water going to New York in car load lots.—The Tidings printed on time. An infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jumper was interred in Marcy cemetery on Sunday afternoon. This is the second child the parents have lost during the past week.

WYOMING.

The Wyoming College company went to Edwarsville on Saturday evening and attended a picnic held there by a home company of that place.

The meetings at the Wyoming Camp were largely attended on Sunday. In the morning Rev. E. Eckman, son of Presiding Elder Eckman, preached an eloquent sermon. In the afternoon Dr. Mogg, of Wilkes-Barre, preached to a large audience. The meetings will close on Wednesday.

A heavy wind storm, which carried a dashing rain, passed over this place on Sunday afternoon and started the people somewhat. The wind storm seemed to confine itself to one portion of the town, and blew off trees in yards and strewn the sidewalks with broken limbs from trees. Two tall chimneys recently erected on the graded school building were blown down. There was also a considerable amount of hail, with the first part of the storm.

The fruit trees suffered much by having their fruit consigned to the ground at Mrs. H. L. Morgan and daughter, Emily, of Scranton, have been the guests of her parents, at Mount Ion.

Rev. Wilson Tribble and family are stopping for a few days at the Wyoming Camp grounds.

THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review.

New York, Aug. 16.—There were periods today when the market for stocks had an appearance of actual dullness, but this was only by contrast with recent markets. The total sales fell below half a million shares by over $6,000,000, which is what it did not do for any while trading day of last week.
